PROF. J. M. MUNYON, Philadelphia, Pa.: Dear Sir—After reading your advertisement in the paper three days ago I hobbled on my crutches to the office of The St. Louis Republic and obtained one sample vial of your famous Rheumatism Cure, and after taking three doses all pain left me, and after the bottle was finished I was able to walk without the aid of my crutches.

I had been suffering with rheumatism for the past five years and had had three gooters attending me, but I derived no benefit from their medicines. I was tortured with pain, was unable to walk and was confined most of the time to my bed.

I thank the Heaveniy Father that I was impressed with your advertisement, offering 10,000 vials to the people of St. Louis, for I had given up all hope of relief.

I shall sing your praise from this day forth.

Baltimore Pastor Makes Startling Charge in Sermon Denouncing Trentment of the Jews.

Baltimore, Md., May 25.-Doctor Madison C. Peters, paster of the Baptist Tabernacle here, in his sermon last night denounced the persecution of the Jews in Russis, and then startled his audience by delaring that in a measure the people of the United States are guilty of the same crime for which Russia and the Russians are censured. He said in part:
"In America the Jew is caricatured in the comic papers and on our stage. In our social, professional and even political clubs he is blackballed.

"I have seen Jewish children go home from our public schools in tears because of the offensive names with which they were taunted. Outrages are frequently perpetrated upon Jews in our cities under the eyes of our police—outrages which are a discrete to the Republic.

"Russian and Roumanian immigrants, who are striving with might and main to earn a livelihood, meet with a reception from the denizens of the streets not at all creditable to American citizenship. Our own skirts are far from clean of antisemitism.

EPOCHS OF HISTORY IN PATENT EXHIBIT.

Government Is Preparing Unique Display for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

SERIES OF MODELS DESIGNED.

Pattern of Original Machine or Tool in Every Line of Invention Will Be Shown.

The Republic Bureau,
14th St. and Pennsylvania Ava,
Washintgon, May 25.—The Patent Office is preparing for the St. Louis Fair a very novel and interesting exhibit, consisting of series of models designed to represent ideas that have made epochs in the industrial history of the world.

So far as possible, the first thing of its kind in every line of human invention will be shown.

For instance, visitors will have an opportunity to see the actual sewing machine which was the first practical contrivance of its kind ever constructed. It was patentin 1846 by Elias Howe. Previously, in 1342, J. J. Greenough had obtained a patent for a sewing machine, which carried the cloth along automatically, having a needle with a hole in the middle

The needle passed back and forth through the fabric somewhat after the manner of the old-fashioned needle. But the Greenough machine, though in its day a wonder did not work fast enough to be of much

The essential principle of the Howe ma-chine was the needle with an eye in the point—an idea which was not wholly original with this inventor, inasmuch as eye-pointwith this inventor, inasmuch as eye-pointed needles had been in use in France for a century, for embroidering.

As a rule, great inventions attain their development through the brains of many men, and this case is hardly an exception.
The machine here described, which is one of the most valued treasures of the Patent Office, is operated with two threads, from spools. On a card attached to it is a bit of verse, in which Howe's creation is made to Say:

Mine are sinews superhuman, Ribs of brass and nerves of steel; I am the Iron Needlewoman, Born to toll and not to feel.

Ribs of brass and nerves of steel;

I am the Iron Needlewoman,
Born to toil and not to feel.

Equally interesting in its way is the earliest typewriter, which was patented by C. Thurber in 1842. The type keys are set around the periphery of a horizontal brass wheel and in order to print a letter it is merely necessary to punch one of the buttons, which causes the type to descend through a little tube and make a mark upon a slip of white paper.

But the wheel has to be freshly adjusted for each letter and at least five minutes would be required to write a single line. The written matter looks like a telegram on ticker tape.

The exhibit in question will include a model of the first cast-iron plow which was patented by Charless Newbold in 1797, and the first screw propeller which was invented by Robert Hook in 1680.

It will be news to most people that the screw propeller was thought of so long ago, but here again is an illustration of the way in which great thoughts are liable to be product of many minds.

The invention of the steamboat is credited to Robert Fulton, yet in the Seventeenth Century Denys Papin launched on the Seine in France a boat that was run by steam. It is a matter of historical record that the river barge men smashed Papin's boat because they feared that it would injure their business.

The most interesting of all the models, however, in the line of aquatics will be that of Abraham Lincoin's famous device for lifting steamboats of shoals.

Another exhibit will be the first printing press and harvesting machine, the latter made in 150 B. C.

The first locomotive and first steam engine, made in Egypt 150 B. C., also will be shown with many other rare inventions. men, who induced him to walk down the street. At Twenty-second and Eugenia they found a lock on the sidewalk.

While examining the lock a second man came up and declared himself to be an officer. Hayes was accused of complicity with his companion in robbery, and both were asked to put up bond. The stranger readily gave up everything he had and Hayes did likewise.

Then the victim reported the matter to the police, and on his description of the robbery the arrests were made. The trio is held pending investigation.

Miss Edna Logan was the prosecuting witness, from whom George Nickel was charged with stealing chickens. A crowd of witnesses appeared for each side, and many conflicting stories puzzled the jury. The argument was heated, and at times the officers kept order with difficulty.

The judge was Hugo Boder, the prosecuting attorney Henry L Small and the defendant's counsel P. H. Hunter. Fred Chase acted as sheriff, Arthur Bushre as police officer and Fred Reiner was clerk of the court. Monticello, N. The star witness was Miss Elsie C. Boide, and her examination and cross-examination occupied a great part of the session. Other witnesses were Archie Sties, Mrs. H. La Shall, August Marten, Miss Bertha Bohlof-ner and Miss Florence Marten.

It was the night of January 27 that Lafayette Taylor disappeared. His wife told the neighbors that he had gone over the mountains on business. The couple, with Mrs. Taylor's 13-year-old daughter, Ida, lived about three miles from Fallsburg.

After spreading the news of her husband's trip, Mrs. Taylor went to her uncle, Peter Yerkins, who lived near by, and offered to sell him her husband's horse for $10.

He said he would not buy it until he spoke to Lafe first about it.

"Lafy won't trouble you," Mrs. Taylor is said to have remarked.

Her other remarks led to an investigation, and she finally admitted to Yerkins that she had killed him and burned his body.

Mrs. Taylor said to-day that she is not nervous at all about what she is to go through. She claims that the killing was purely an accident. The pistol, she says, was discharged during a struggle for the possession of it.
